

A Word About Passion

This past weekend Valentine's day was celebrated. We all have our own way of celebrating this day. For some it is a romantic dinner and glamorous gifts, for others a simple card or a single rose. For some, this day is treasured with quiet evening at home leaving the stresses of everyday life behind for a few hours. It is a night to celebrate our love and passion for the ones we love.

Love and passion is not just for the people we love. It can be exercised in our careers everyday. In the trying economic times that we are experiencing and with many people exploring new career options, love and passion should be considered. When you have a passion for something it offers you an endless personal challenge, which you are always ready tackle. What do you love doing, have an absolute passion for and how can you relate it to your career?

When you find a career related to your passion you will most likely succeed as it will be the most natural thing you can do. When you love what you do it will reflect in all aspects of you life and as you know you will be happier. Personal fulfillment will contribute to your success and how you relate to others.

As you pursue new work, acquire new clients or an entire new career, remember your passions. Can you intertwine your passion with your career. All industries need a variety of skills so most likely you can adapt your skills to any industry you love. It may take some creativity and the marketing of yourself in a new way but it is possible. It is important to note that everyone is creative when it comes to what we know and love.

Here are some quick ideas to kick-start your own thinking process.

Start brainstorming and start your new life.....

Are you a golf fanatic? Manage a golf course. Sell golf related products. Design a new club. Work with the PGA.

Do you love travel? Teach English overseas. Pursue a career in sales. Become a tour guide. Write for a travel magazine.

Are you creative? Freelance and use your art to develop new patterns for clothing, curtains, bedspreads, or wallpaper. Manage an art gallery or become a dealer. Work at the art museum. Use your skills for Interior Design.

Are you ready to pursue your passion? The possibilities are endless....

Not sure where to start

I have been lending an ear for most of my career to people looking to make a change. Whether you want an objective view, need someone to brainstorm with or want to market yourself in a new light, contact me and I'd be happy to help.
